Communicating Effectively with Patients and Families:
The Health in your Hands Voluntary and Community Sector Event Funding

@NHSLeicester
NHS Leicester City Clinical Commissioning Group (CCG) was legally established in April 2013 as part of the Government's reforms of the NHS. In 2018/19 we were entrusted with a budget of £531m with which to plan and buy many health services needed by people living and working in the city of Leicester.

The services we are responsible for include hospital treatment, rehabilitation services, urgent and emergency care, community health services, mental health and learning disability services. We do not provide these services ourselves. We pay organisations to deliver them for patients on our behalf.

In April 2015 we also took on responsibility for the core activities of our 56 GP practices.

Our role is also to help people to live long and healthy lives and prevent them from needing such services in the first place.

Based in the centre of Leicester, the CCG employs approximately 90 staff.
In March 2019 Leicester City CCG granted 17 local Voluntary and Community Sector (VCS) organisations a sum up to £2,500 to put on a health and wellbeing event (or series of events).

The CCG offered VCS organisations a one-off opportunity to host their own public events with the aim of promoting their services to targeted communities in a creative way.

Throughout the project approximately 3,000 people from some of the most diverse and seldom heard communities engaged with the events. Groups reported an increase in service users and volunteers as a direct result of the events funded by this project.

A large number of the winning organisations have been able to sustain their engagement activities introduced through the project with some attracting further funding from other sources.
Background

- Our Engagement and Patient Experience Strategy 2019 – 2021 highlights our vision that in the next three years we will have built a stronger on-going dialogue with our communities by reaching even the most diverse and hard to reach communities.

- Not only do we need to ensure the health services we buy meets their needs, but our role is also to help people to live long and healthy lives and prevent them from needing such services in the first place. We need to find new ways to help them to take greater responsibility for their own health and reduce the impact that factors such as smoking, drinking alcohol, poor diet and lack of exercise may have on future health.
• It is well known that voluntary and community services can make significant contributions to improving health outcomes. They can provide the important preventative services that keep people away from expensive hospital stays or frequent GP visits.

• The CCG allocated some non-recurrent funding towards a grant which would allow for our key health and wellbeing messages to be shared with a diversity of audiences and seldom heard communities; strengthening relationships and empowering individuals.

Overall comments:

Total score (out of 9):
Robust application process

• We received 48 applications.

• These were reviewed anonymously by an independent evaluation panel. The panel included lay members, service users and carers.

• They looked for the most creative ideas that encouraged members of the public to engage in the event, at a suitable and accessible time, date and venue as well as providing value for money.

• Through the scoring process, we were able to achieve a wide range of winning organisations, covering a variety of communities and groups, many of whom are often seldom heard or easily overlooked.
• Winning bidders promoted their forthcoming events through their networks, and any public events were additionally promoted by the CCG.

• The winning organisations then attended a celebration morning where they presented how they had spent the funding to the CCG and shared the learning, outcomes and feedback.
Outcomes and evaluation

• Winning organisations attended a celebration morning where they presented to the CCG how they had spent the funds. Organisations shared the learning, outcomes and feedback from the projects.

• The 17 grants facilitated VCS organisations to engage with circa 3,000 people from a wide range of groups and communities. This project allowed for relationships to be built with previously unengaged groups and reached community members and service users that would not have been otherwise reachable by the CCG.

• The winning groups took innovative and creative approaches to their events using bespoke methods appropriate to their communities.
Outcomes and evaluation

• A large number of the 17 organisations have also been able to sustain activities introduced through the project with some attracting further funding from other sources.

• The celebration event connected other groups together, for example, a Bangladeshi women’s group invited Gypsy Traveller women to attend their dance classes. All of the winners shared contact details to continue engaging, working together and sharing learnings with each other and with the CCG.

• Since the project has come to an end we have already seen many examples of how the project has continued to build on its success.
Outcomes and evaluation

This project truly demonstrates how a small investment can have a big impact including:

- enabled a vast amount of sustainable engagement through a variety of methods and forums
- allowed for target populations to be reached and deliver messages effectively in a way that is tailored to each community
- enlisted the support of volunteers and community goodwill to further build relationships and link communities
- reported an increase in volunteers and service users as a result of the events funded by this project
Outcomes and evaluation

- There are many reasons why this project was a success, but one key reason was that we gave the winning organisations free reign to develop their own creative ideas, with only a small set of broad criteria to align with our priorities.

- This meant that ideas came directly from people who understand how to engage their communities, and they put in practical steps to ensure their success.

- By sharing the outcomes with all that took part, we have opened many doors to further engagement opportunities which are already being pursued by the CCG.

- Many of the communities are also engaging across organisations, and a number of activities which were introduced through this funding are continuing, such as health education, yoga and wellbeing workshops.

Key learning

• Offer tiered funding levels.

• Share how the events will be evaluated as part of the information pack.

• Ask for considerations in the application process of how the project could be made sustainable.

• Use an all-independent evaluation panel and include service users and carers so that the assessments are impartial.

• Offer a celebration event at the end of the project or a thank you to show your appreciation and celebrate successes/share learning.

• Plan further activity as an outcome of the project.
Thank you for listening
